You will be creating scenes between a Time Traveler and a character from the past, where the Time Traveler is describing life during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Information for parents

About the activity :

Your child will practice :

- Creating characters in a two to three minute film sequence.
- Creating dialogue for these characters.

You could :

- Play one of the characters with your child.
- Ask your child to present his/her scene to you.
- Film his/her scene so that he/she can then share them with his/her friends.

Instructions for students :

Warmup task:

Write down examples you can think of, of time travel in media (Doctor Who, Life on Mars etc.)

First task:

Either journal on your own, or discuss with friends, which times you would travel to if you could choose any time the last 2000 years.

Second task:

Choose one period of time you would like to travel to. Create a scene, where you are a Time Traveler from April, 2020 going back in time to tell people about life during the COVID-19 pandemic. Your script should be a dialogue between your 2020 character and your character from the past. You can play both roles, or recruit family. Keep in mind how life was during your chosen time period. You can also play your current self, talking to your past self like in the example below:
